

Ability of different indicators to detect methodologically defective models (348 configurations)

The integral index V outperforms both macro-F1 and every individual component — the discriminative ability arises precisely from the joint non-compensatory aggregation. Confidence intervals were obtained by cluster bootstrap over configurations.